Dances with Waves

Iridescent water and ocean secrets play out in Qayten's statement necklace from the Ola collection. Reminiscent of the movement and colours of the waves, the Italian jeweller infuses deep blue and sky blue hues into its sapphire-studded Ola necklace, resembling the gentle foams on the surging waves.

MONOCHROME MOMENTS

Edward Chiu jewellery is a blend of old-world craftsmanship and contemporary sophistication. One of his signature aesthetics was melding black and white jade into his designs. This bird-motif brooch crafted in 18K white gold and adorned with black and white jade, pearls, and diamonds is a beauty to behold.

GRAND BOULE

A-listers turned up to show their support for amfAR's gala at the 70th Cannes Film Festival, parading some seriously stunning high jewellery. Half-Swedish, half-Thai actress and model Praya Lundberg adorned her bejewelled gown with Boule earrings, ring, and bracelet in pink gold set with white diamonds from de Grisogono.

Captured Beauty

Palmiero Jewellery Design's Captured Stones collection is a "creative pretext" to throw the spotlight on large, precious stones and bring them alive through encircling sculptures. This pair of captured earrings in white gold is an ode to the beauty of fire opals set against a stage made of white diamonds. www.palmierogielli.com

POETIC APPEAL

As an ode to Gabrielle Chanel, the maison has launched the Mademoiselle Prive Decor Aubazine jewellery watches, limited to five pieces per design. Chanel, who grew up in the Aubazine village, spent six years in the orphanage. Inspired by the Romanesque aesthetics of the Aubazine Abbey, the dial — paved with brilliant- and baguette-cut diamonds — features motifs that evoke its stained glass windows. www.chanel.com
